

Invictus Games

What are the Invictus Games?

- The Invictus Games is an international sporting event for wounded, injured and sick servicemen and women.
- Over 400 competitors from 14 nations will take part. The teams will come from the armed forces that have served along side each other.
- The Games were launched on 6th March 2014 by Prince Harry at London's Copper Box arena.
- When Prince Harry saw a British team competing at the US Warrior Games in 2013, he wanted to launch a similar international sporting event in the UK.
- They will be held on the 10th – 14th September 2014.

What are the Invictus Games?

- The Invictus Games is an international sporting event for wounded, injured and sick servicemen and women.
- Over 400 competitors from 14 nations will take part. The teams will come from the armed forces that have served along side each other.
- The Games were launched on 6th March 2014 by Prince Harry at London's Copper Box arena.
- When Prince Harry saw a British team competing at the US Warrior Games in 2013, he wanted to launch a similar international sporting event in the UK.

What countries are taking part?

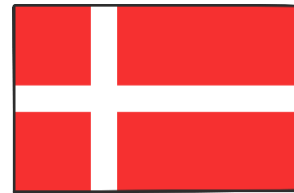

Afghanistan

Australia

Canada

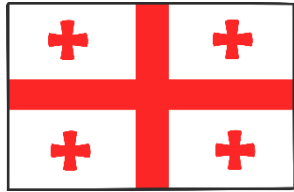

Denmark

Estonia

France

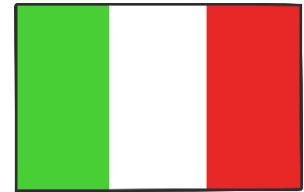

Georgia

Germany

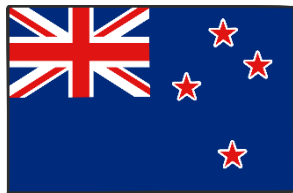

Iraq

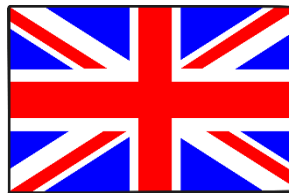

Italy

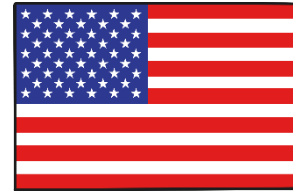

Netherlands

New Zealand

UK

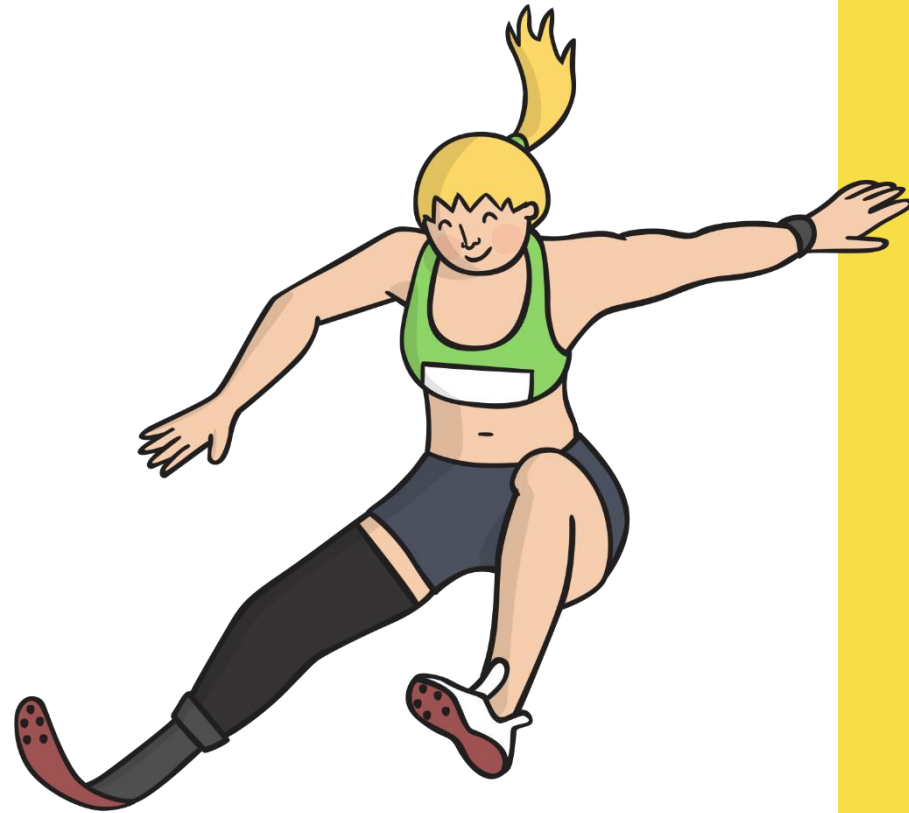

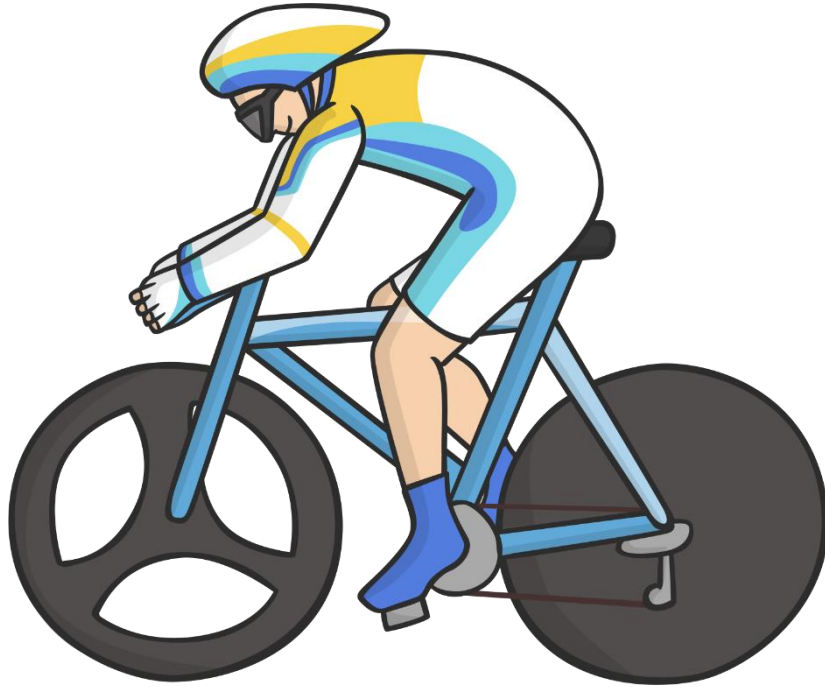

USA

What events are taking place?

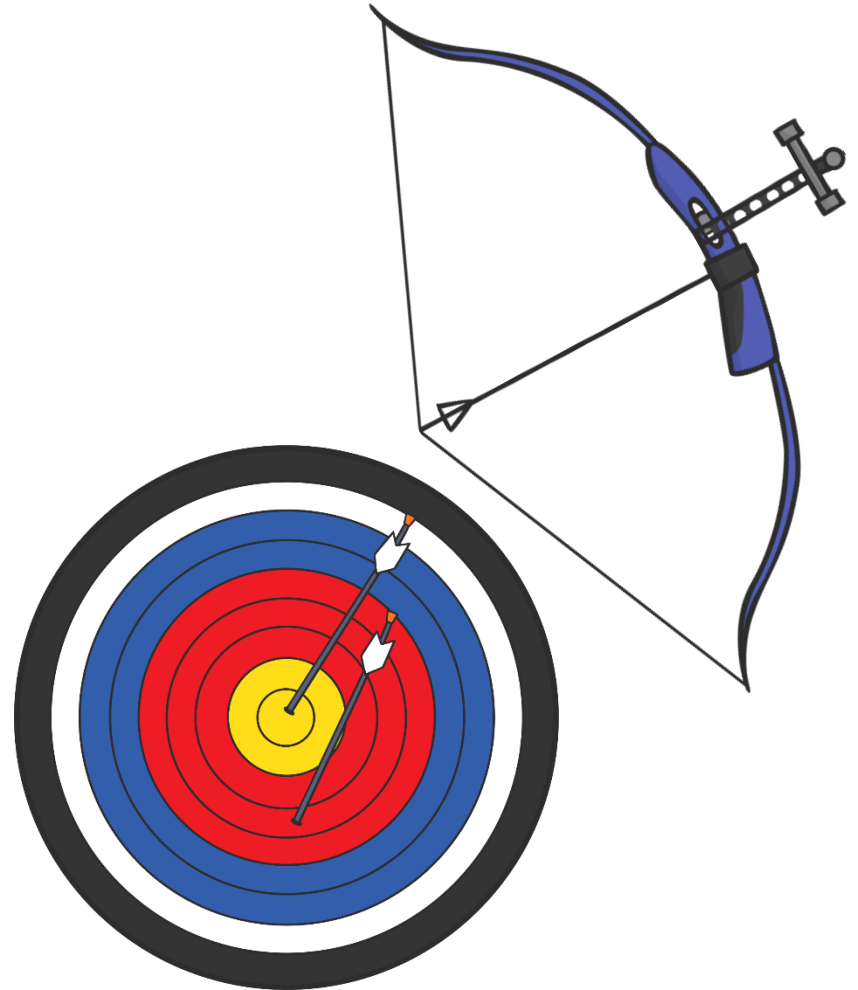

Road cycling

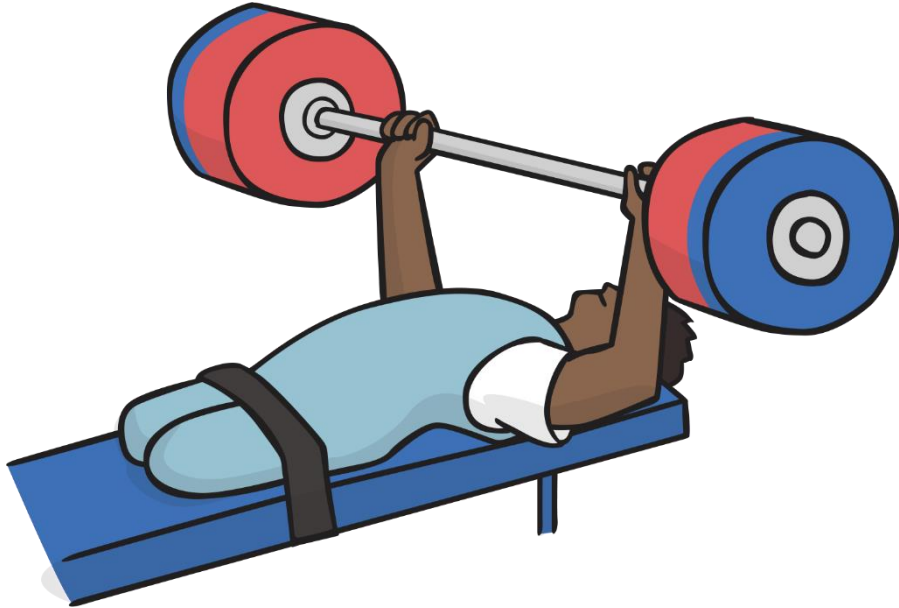

Athletics

Wheelchair rugby

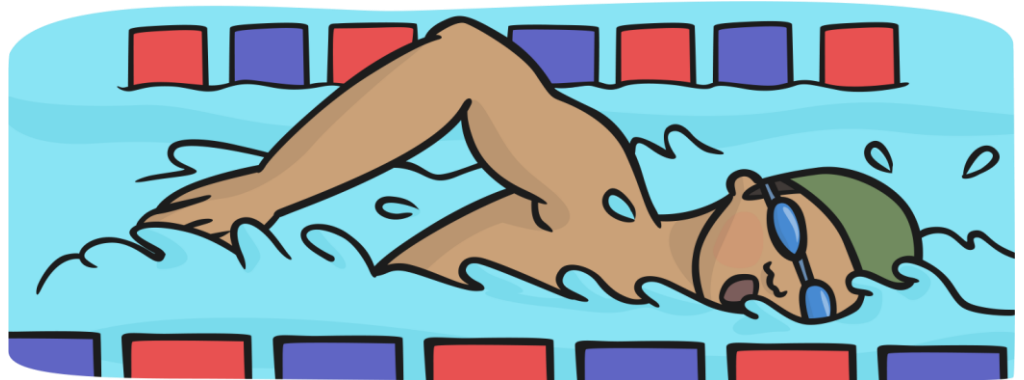

Archery

Power lifting

swimming

THE END